Chapter 1 by özlem

"Do you see what I see?"

Chapter 2 by Joakim

"Yes" she answered.

"Let's get out of here!"

Chapter 3 by özlem

"No. Wait a second..." she stepped forward. "It is not what you think it is."

Chapter 4 by StoryWizard

"Oh no, it most certainly isn't" came a dark and sinister voice.

Chapter 5 by StoryWizard

The voice shocked them. Recognition spread across both of their faces. They had heard this voice before. but not in such a sinister tone. No they had heard this voice before. years ago.

before the darkness came. Years ago when the sun still shone

Just then, as if the thought of the voice's owner had triggered it, the house shook. As the house shook the dark figure lept up and out the window.

And as the walls shook, cracking in places. The girl had just enough time to call out for the voice before the world around turned dark. "Dad!"

Chapter 6 by anita edmunds

"Not any more" replied the voice "But I can hold it back for just a moment longer, please RUN!"

She paused for a moment, entranced by thoughts of what had been and what she wanted to say, but the boy grabbed her arm and pulled her away; he was shouting at her, but she wasn't listening, instead staring into those cold dark eyes looking for the recognition she so needed. She mouthed 'I'm sorry' as the ground was slipping away and she was falling...The boy did not let go and despite herself she found she was cling hold of him as they fell together.

Chapter 7 by intellikat

The earth received them as a mother welcoming home a pair of old shoes once thought lost. The ground took them in, swallowed them up as the they plummeted through the depths. There was only darkness at first, and cold. And then there was a rising heat, and a stench of sulphur... and as the fell they noticed pairs of red eyes blinking on and off in the gloom around them... Watching them as they descended into the septic tank of the earth. What hideous creatures lurked below they knew not, but they would soon know.

Their descent was abruptly halted as they fell into an underground pool in a limestone cavern with a terrific splash. When they resurfaced, a voice boomed out in the terrifying space, echoing against the rock walls.

"Welcome home, my children."

The red eyes surrounded them blinked and winked, belonging to multitudinous gargoyles and twisted figures of animals, hobbling and leering at the pair floating below.

was looking around to look where the sound was coming from. When he saw the red eyes he thought that his heart will come out from his mouth.

"Katie, Katie! Wake up" it was Dad's voice

They both looked around but the red blinking eyes were still staring at them. Suddenly something started to pull them down. Just like the first time.

"Wake up!" the voice was coming closer

"Daaaad?!" she replied and the red eyes disappeared...

... I had to see this kind of dreams a lot...before once it all became a reality...
